At 9:30am the Panchayath president delivered a short inaugural speech and inaugurated the camp. The 3 doctors present also shared their expert views about various treatment methods and the advantages of their respected stream of practice. The official function ended and the camp actively started at 10:00am.

Patients registered their names at the registration desk. Three separate lists were made for allopathy Ayurveda and homoeopathic patients. Our volunteers helped the doctors by listing down the symptoms and medicines. This was a fresh experience for our volunteers being engineering students.

Refreshments like tea and biscuits were provided in between to the waiting patients. Drinking water was also supplied to the patients at regular intervals. Our volunteers received the elder patients at the gate itself and helped them walk along and also provided them with wheelchair that was pre-arranged for the disabled patients.

Lunch break of half an hour was taken at 1:00pm. Food arrangements were made for the doctors and volunteers in the school. The camp resumed at 1:30pm. The camp was rushed with large number of patient from various places. By 4:00pm the camp was winded up as the long queue of patients ended.

Conclusion

The camp was rushed with large number of patient from various places. Allopathic unit saw the most number of patients as other two streams had comparatively less consultancy. This camp helps the Cheruthuruthy Gram Panchayath people to identify their health issues on time and help them to take necessary health care for better living.
